

TAFT REPUBLICANS ORGANIZE TO MAKE STRENUOUS FIGHT

MET IN MILWAUKEE TO PLAN
FOR CAMPAIGN TO NAME
TAFT DELEGATES IN
THE STATE

WICKERSHAM'S SPEECH

Member of President's Cabinet Talks
on Leader in Warmest Kind of Praise.

Milwaukee, Wis., Feb. 20.—The Taft campaign in Wisconsin has been officially launched. With ringing resolutions declaring the loyalty and allegiance of all to the president, called "the best since Lincoln," the opening of the campaign in Wisconsin and the beginning of the plan to infuse Taft policies into every precinct of the state, saw life at the conference of friends and supporters of the nation's executive held in the arcade of the Flamingo Monday afternoon.

E. L. Phillips was elected to handle the campaign in Wisconsin. Former Gov. W. D. Howard, Port Arkison was placed at the head of the delegates of four selected as delegates at large to the national convention, pledged to the support of William Howard Taft. Other delegates are: E. L. Phillips, Milwaukee; James O. Davidson, Madison; George B. Hudnall, Superior.

It was an enthusiastic gathering. There was more spirit manifested than has been exhibited in the conservative ranks since the famous campaign of 1901. The conference was made up of men from all parts of the state, who came to Milwaukee at their own expense to take part in the movement which has all the appearance of reestablishing the republican party in Wisconsin, as presided by some of the speakers. It was a noticeable feature of the gathering that a large part of the faces were young, those of men, however, who were representative of their community.

INTERESTS YOUNG MEN

The presence of those who were taken as an indication that the younger men in the party have tired of the visionary theories of the last few years and realized the sterling integrity and honesty of purpose of President Taft, and were ready to work for the election of delegates to the republican national convention who would stand for him. The impression of all who attended as well as those who watched the proceedings, was that this meeting marked a new era in Wisconsin politics. That it was the beginning of a movement which would be widespread throughout the state and would in the end bring the party back to sane and sane constitutional methods.

The foundations for a fight that would keep the other side guessing from this time until the polls are closed on April 2, were well laid at the conference. When it adjourned it was with a feeling on the part of every man present that he would go back home and become a fiery evangel for the renomination and re-election of a man for president who, by all rules of equity and justice, was entitled to this at the hands of the American people.

The following were the delegates at large selected as the choice of the republicans present and their names and those of the district delegates will be placed upon the official ballot. Taft delegates at large:

W. D. Howard, Port Arkison.
E. L. Phillips, Milwaukee.
James O. Davidson, Madison.
George B. Hudnall, Superior.

Candidates for delegates from the First, Ninth and Eleventh districts in separate caucuses were elected as follows: A ninth district conference will be held at Green Bay next week to name delegates, and a tenth district conference at Eau Claire on Thursday. In the other districts delegates have been chosen.

First district—E. J. Elliot, Racine, and A. E. Mutherson, Janesville; alternates, Dr. Byron M. Caples, Waukesha and John Kohler, Kenosha.

Ninth district—John Kornen, Green Bay.

Eleventh district—Peter Elmon, Superior.

The other delegates and the alternates for the Ninth and Eleventh will be selected later.

Emmanuel L. Phillips was named as manager of the Taft campaign in Wisconsin.

The following was the set of resolutions adopted:

Resolved, That this conference of Republicans of Wisconsin desires to place on record its unqualified approval of the nomination of President William Howard Taft.

We believe that President Taft should be re-nominated and re-elected. It is the party custom to accord such endorsement to an honest and faithful executive.

President Taft has made a most admirable record for his administration, his purity and his country. A partial recital of his achievements include:

His wise policies in respect to conservation.

His courageous efforts to purify and extend the civil service.

His successful curbing of the encroachments of illicit business through his effective enforcement of the laws.

His determination to promote efficiency and economy in the public service.

His prompt and judicious action in protecting the lives and property of American citizens when danger existed in the Mexican borders and in avoiding embarrassing international complications.

His rehabilitation of the customs service.

His wisdom in dealing with the problems of interstate commerce.

His handling the construction of

PATROLMAN FINDS BOMB AT ENTRANCE OF NEW YORK FLAT

Evident Attempt to Destroy Tenement Building Averted by Patrolman's Quick Work.

New York, Feb. 20.—A patrolman, passing a tenement house on Avenue B, on the East side early today, placed himself and rubbed his eyes when he suddenly noticed a blackened coffee pot reposing on the key door step and standing and spitting as though a red hot stove was beneath.

The policeman went closer to investigate and saw sparks coming from the spot. The lifting of the cover revealed a long smoking fuse communicating with a black mass in the bottom of the pot.

Storjor scooped up a hat full of snow and packed it down tight over the fuse, extinguishing the blaze. Then gingerly he carried the pot to headquarters where the experts declared it one of the most dangerous dynamite bombs which had been brought to their attention in months.

The detectives questioned all the dwellers in the flat (tenement), but none of them could give any clue to the attempted outrage.

COMPANY PROTESTS AT STANDING TRIAL

North German-Lloyd Company Unable to Understand How They Have Violated Immigration Law.

Dresden, Germany, Feb. 20.—The North German Lloyd steamship company professes to be unable to understand the reasons for the decisions of the supreme court of the United States which yesterday declared that the company must stand trial in the United States circuit court on a charge of violating the immigration laws. The company states it has always been its practice to return excluded immigrants gratis.

According to the arguments before the supreme court the North German-Lloyd sold tickets in Germany for the round trip to the United States. The money for the return passage was held by the company in New York to be repaid to the immigrants should deportation not be ordered. The company argued that the United States court had no jurisdiction, but the supreme court yesterday ordered the trial to proceed.

WAS NOT DYNAMITE BUT FIRE-CRACKERS

Explosions Referred to in Iron Workers' Resolution Were Jokes of St. Louis Delegate.

Indianapolis, Feb. 20.—Fire-crackers in the hall, not dynamite under non-union steel "jobs" were referred to in a resolution submitted to the convention of the International Association of Bridge and Structural Iron Workers at Rochester, N. Y., in September, 1910, according to a statement by Frank M. Ryan, president of the association, today. "It was a joke," said Ryan, "and came about because P. J. Morris of St. Louis had put bunches of fire-crackers under the chairs of the delegates and set them off. The explosions startled all of us. The resolution went to the resolutions committee and never was reported on. I suppose John McNamara kept it. We did not discuss it because we knew nothing of the dynamiting plot."

Mr. Samuel's petition alleges Haselet an imbecile from loss of memory and old age. It asks the court to pass the verdict of insanity. There will be a hearing in the case on Friday.

The finding and award were announced today by the industrial commission. No attorneys were employed either by the gas company or by Mrs. Jane Tannor, widow, and the award therefore goes to the widow in its entirety without deduction for attorney's fees, court cost or other expenses and she will be paid $31.25 every two weeks for 4 years or until the total amount of award has been paid. Tannor was killed Jan. 17, 1912 in the third district plant of the company. This is the first fatality of an employee of the private corporation to be settled under the workman's compensation act.

Joplin, Mo., Feb. 20.—With it practically certain that eight delegates at large, each with one half a vote will be named to attend the national convention at Baltimore and with supporters for Champ Clark for president in complete control, the democratic state convention which convened today here has only one big point to decide, that is, who shall be named national committeeman from Missouri.

After an all night meeting and many conferences between party leaders during all of which the aged senator from Missouri, William J. Stone, was the guiding hand, this "slate" which was made up of delegates at large, announced United States Senators Stone and Reed, former governor Joseph W. Folk, Lon V. Stephens and David R. Francis and A. M. Backley of Gallatin, William T. Kemper of Kansas City, Gilbert Burbee of Joplin.

Yard employees notified three police stations in the neighborhood. A patrol from each station hurried to the scene to find that the engine was derailed when they came upon it.

"What would we have done if we had sighted the speeding engine?" asked a perplexed policeman of another officer.

"I had no thought of that," responded the other.

Then the wheezing patrol horses were trotted back to their stations and the officers pronounced the quarry "safe."

SUPREME COURT CASE BACKS COUNTY BOARD

Dane County Board Upheld in Case Brought Before Supreme Court Concerning Changing of Compensation.

Madison, Feb. 20.—The Supreme court today sustained the decision of the county of Dane in a case brought by former Register of Deeds, S. T. Burgess. In effect the court decided that a resolution of the Co. board in 1909 changing the compensation system from fees to salary is valid. During his last term Burgess retained the fees instead of drawing the salary and the county must now bring suit against him or his bondsmen to recover the excess of fees over salary due him. In case No. 220 in which a Milwaukee firm was sued for selling a toy pistol to a retailer who later sold it to a boy who contracted tetanus from which he died, the order was affirmed and the firm must go to trial in a damage action unless the case is settled privately.

COLOMBIAN CLAIMS WOULD BE ALLOWED BY HAGUE TRIBUNAL

Is Fear Expressed in House Committee on Foreign Affairs Who Hesitate at Such a Move.

Washington, Feb. 20.—Whether it would be dangerous from the standpoint of facing an enormous indemnity verdict for the United States to submit to the Hague Tribunal the claims of the republic of Colombia for the Panama Canal strip, is a question which the house committee on foreign affairs will consider before making a report to congress on its investigation of Colombian claims. The hearing on the Railway reparation claims submitted to the dispute to the Hague continued today and Henry D. Hall, of the New York "World" summed up the evidence in the case which he said tended to prove that former President Roosevelt took the isthmus in violation of treaty obligations; that the revolution was fomented by this country and that Colombia was entitled to reparation.

It was headed, "Object lesson in the full dinner pail," and showed a pair of 1910 with bulging sides while that of 1912 was half its size with sides indented.

MAKE REPORT ON A MOST DRASTIC LAW

EMPLOYERS' LIABILITY REGULATION REPORTED TO CONGRESS THIS AFTER-NOON.

PLAIN LAW ELIMINATED

Committee Having Drafting of Bill Took Most Radical Step Forward Of Any Bill Ever Introduced.

Washington, Feb. 20.—The most drastic employers' liability legislation in many years is proposed by the employers' liability and workmen's compensation report, made public today, drafted by Senator Sutherland, of Utah, the commission personnel also consists of Senator Chamberlain, of Oregon; Rep. Moon, of Pa.; Rep. Brantley, of Ga.; and D. L. Coase, editor of a railroad men's magazine. The report is accompanied by the draft of a bill in which the commission eliminates the common law doctrine of negligence with what it characterizes as the unjust defenses of assumption of risk, fellow servant fault and contributory negligence. Compensation with a general basis of an equivalent to one-half wages, is to be paid in every case except the injury or death is caused by the willful intention of the employee to injure himself or another or in case of intoxication on duty.

The combined railroad companies of the country are paying out to their employees for accidents in settlements and judgments approximately $10,000,000 and the proposed law, as nearly as the commission can estimate it will raise this by 25 per cent. Figuring on the periodical payments extending over a term of years and capitalized at 5 per cent, the commission points out that the total received by the beneficiaries would reach an aggregate of $16,000,000 annually. It points out that for every dollar the railroad companies are compelled to pay under existing law they will under the proposed law pay approximately $1.25, and that for every dollar the employees and their dependents now receive they would receive a sum very much in excess of $1.25. It says that during 1908, 1909 and 1910 the railroads paid $14,600,000 in settlements and judgments alone on account of the death of nearly 12,000 workers and $21,333,000 approximately for permanent or temporary disabling injuries, as well as sustaining an economic loss of 161,654,000 days.

The proposed bill declares that it is the policy of congress to consider the burden of payments for personal injuries as an element of the cost of transportation and directs the Interstate Commerce Commission to recognize and give effect to this policy. The bill would provide that every common carrier engaged in interstate or foreign commerce by railroad shall pay compensation to any employee who sustains personal injury in line of duty or to his dependents in case of his death. It makes the remedy exclusive by reason of the compensation being complete satisfaction. It abolishes all existing common law and statutory remedies, and applies to all railroads in the District of Columbia as well.

It would exclude from compensation the first fourteen calendar days, except that the employer is to furnish all necessary medical and surgical aid, including hospital services, and is to continue to so furnish after the fourteen days under specific provisions. The employee or his dependent must notify the employer of the accident within thirty days, except under certain circumstances which extend the limit to ninety days. After the fourteen day period following the injury employer and employee are to agree in writing on a settlement; arbitration committees may be organized by them to settle disputes and award compensation, subject to review within two years an "adjuster of accident insurance" to be appointed by each United States District Court for four year terms at from $1,800 to $3,000 annually. Either party may petition the adjuster to proceed. The adjuster is to report his finding to the court. Right to compensation is forfeited by an employee as long as he refuses physical examination by the employer's physician.

Jury trial rights are preserved but are to be deemed waived except on demand. The adjuster or the court will fix the compensation of counsel for the employee. Provision is made for appeals to the Circuit Court of Appeals and to the Supreme Court, and for guardians to act on behalf of infants, under eighteen, or the mentally incompetent.

The measure would prohibit assignment of any cause of action or payments due or to become due and exempt all such liability and payments from levy or sale.

The compensation is a first lien on the employers' property in case of insolvency.

The government's right to enforce penalty is not to be affected by the act. If any injury or death is caused under circumstances creating a legal liability for damages by any other carrier the employer "is subrogated to the rights of the employee and may maintain an action to recover damages not exceeding the compensation payable to the employee. No contract or device of any kind is to operate to relieve the employer from any liability under the act. The monthly wages are to be considered as not more than $100 nor less than $50 a month with certain exceptions.

Monthly payments of death benefits are to be made for eight years thus: A widow alone forty per cent of the monthly wages; widow and child under sixteen or otherwise dependent, fifty per cent; any child under sixteen or dependent 25 per cent, and 10 per cent for each additional child; payments, if the widow dies or remarries within eight years to be continued to the children, if any, for the unexpired period. If no widow or children, 50 per cent.

CHIEF IN DEFENSE OF ACTION AT FIRE

MADE A REPLY TO CRITICISMS IN SPEECH BEFORE COUNCIL
LAST EVENING.

ENGINE SOLE RESERVE

Judgments Allowed A. E. Badger, C. F.
Kelly, and C. W. Jackson.—Vote
to Allow Anton Bier Claim.

Pushing to reply to and refute the widespread criticism of his methods
in fighting the fire, Chief Henry Klein
of the fire department last night was given an opportunity to speak in his own defense at the regular meeting of the Common Council. In a speech of from fifteen to twenty minutes during the fire, Klein related the story of the fire from start to finish as seen from his own point of view, upheld his methods of combating it, and outlined his reasons for not bringing the steam
fire engine into use.

"When the fire started," said Chief Klein, "I was on the way from my home to the Central fire station.
I was near the Brillingham and Milwaukee lumber yards when the alarm
sounded, and I immediately started thirty-one. I ran to the station, cranked up my machine and drove to the fire as quickly as possible. This had been seen by two gentlemen, one from near the Baptist church on Pleasant
street, and that other from the fire department. They had seen flames burst out of the basement windows on Court street and shoot clear across the street. I do not know for certain what the cause of the fire was, but from the manifestations of it at this time it seems probable that the cause
of it was a hot air explosion.

"When an explosion of this kind
takes place fire is shot into all parts of the room simultaneously, and out through doorways, air shafts, and vents of every kind. Having decided that the fire was of such a nature, I ordered my men to concentrate their efforts on preventing the fire from spreading up through the elevator shaft.

"As soon as I arrived at the fire I discovered that one line of hose had been laid from the firemen tried to turn it on, but it was frozen tight.
No time was to be lost so we abandoned for the time being the hose laid
I myself tried the hydrant in front of the Nelson livery barn,
found it in working order, and ordered two lines of hose laid to the nearest nozzle. Two more lines were run from the corner of Court and Main streets, and later one from the corner of Park street and St. Lawrence avenue. These were laid to the front and rear of the building.
In the rear to get at the fire a tremendous draft was created and the flames commenced to roar and roll.
When a fire has reached this stage
there is no stopping its progress in a building of this size. I do not think the Milwaukee fire department could have checked it. Only enormous resources could avail. All we could do was to prevent the fire from spreading. For this purpose we ran a lead of hose from near the livery
property and the extra practice
wagon which carries only second class hose was brought from the corner of River and Pleasant streets
to be in reserve.

"At this time I received warning
to the effect that we were
losing all our resources available
and that we could hope for no more. Our resources from that quarter had reached their limit. No one is to blame for this but the people of Janesville, those who keep their faucets open to prevent the pipes from freezing or to always have fresh water at hand. You do not have to go out of the city hall to find evidence to this effect. I have evidence that there were between 250 and 300 faucets open, and all these reduce our fire fighting resources.

"The problem now resolved itself
into a question of how far the fire
would extend, and in what direction
it would spread if at all. Much criticism has been directed at me because I did not place the steam engine at work on the bridge. There were abundant reasons for my not doing
so. If the flames spread across Court street the engine would have been out of and powerless to protect any
of the buildings to the north and east.
This would make it necessary to haul the engine, hose and all around to the other side by way of the Milwaukee street bridge. Much time would have been lost, the hose would have been frozen in transit, and in unwinding the hose would have cracked
and broken as if it had been so much sausage.

"I kept the fire engine in reserve
in case the fire should spread and sent a team back to the station to wait a probable summons. I had a company of action mapped out for it.
If the fire had spread in the east
near the jail, if to the south and to the west, near the Thometz saloon,
I had plenty of hose to use in any emergency."

At the close of Mr. Klein's speech in his own behalf, Mayor Nichols
asked if any wished to question the Chief. Those who volunteered questions were Alderman Buchholz and Sam Rehlin, a member of the firm which burned out.

Alderman Buchholz asked the Chief what he meant by referring to the citizens of Janesville as to blame for the failure of the water supply. In response he said that the total capacity of the pumps was 300 gallons a minute, but that it fell far below that figure because of the numerous faucets
in the homes of the city.

Sam Rehlin declared that when he reached the fire the team was all in hurry and that when he requested the Chief to run a line of hose to that side
he was told that there was none available, and that if he had one there was not water enough.

Although the council room was filled with visitors no more questions were put to the Chief and the regular busi-

Allow Several Judgments.

To Alderman Hall of the Finance Committee fell the lot of introducing the greatest amount of business last evening. In addition to submitting the usual number of bills which were allowed without discussion, presenting the report of the city treasurer for January and the salary list for February, which received the approval of the council, he also reported for allowance several judgments against the city. The first in favor of A. E. Badger
in the sum of $127, deposed
by the board of review in October, 1910; the others in favor of C. F. and
C. W. Jackson for $90.00 by the Circuit Court. All were voted allowed.

City Clerk Refused Help.
The order introduced by Alderman Hall authorizing the city clerk to engage assistance in copying the tax roll made by the tax commission
assessors was laid on the table for two weeks on the motion of Alderman Shurlock. The reason that Clerk Cummings has requested assistance is that he desires to have the work done by April 3, when his term of office expires.

Anton Bier Claim Allowed.
The findings of the State Industrial Commission in the case of Anton Bier were presented by Alderman Donahue. On his motion compensation for the time lost in the sum of $21.91, was allowed him, and $21.53
to Dr. Charles Sutherland for attendance upon him.

The council granted the petition
of Joseph Cronk that he be permitted to transfer his saloon license to C. G.
Kneff and C. Knapp at 129 East Milwaukee street, and accepted the bonds
of the latter.

Final plans and estimates for the improvement of Main street from Milwaukee street to the Fourth avenue
bridge were accepted and resolutions
passed awarding benefits and dan-ages.

Alderman Buchholz introduced an order authorizing the city to construct a cross walk on East street across Prospect avenue and to place an iron
rutter plate at the northeast corner of the intersection of North First and East streets.

The council adjourned until Thursday night to hear Attorney Ringer read
over the ordinances as revised.

BAPTIST C. E. ENJOYS BIG ANNUAL BANQUET

Large Number at Stirring Meeting—Pres. Ferrell Gives Strong Address on Efficiency.

At the annual banquet of the Y. P.
C. E. society of the Baptist church
last evening about forty people enjoyed the program and supper. E. T.
Ferrell of Kenosha, state president of the society, was the speaker of the evening and gave one of the most stirring addresses which the society has had. Taking the subject of efficiency he showed how the needs of the hour demanded it and what could be done with it. Efficiency in demanded in all lines of work or endeavor throughout the world today
and why should it not be applied to the efforts of the C. E. The great needs, the railroads and hundreds of other great concerns are constantly striving for efficiency and they do not care so much what their employees do while the boss is watching them as they do about the actions
and habits of the employees when they are not at work. It is of prime importance for young people to learn
this early and to remember that it is not a man's ancestors so much as himself that counts.

After a few numbers by the orchestra the guests were invited to take their seats at the tables and a delightful supper was served by the young people. Before and after Mr.
Ferrell's address several musical numbers were given by the orchestra
and two quartets.

On the tables banquets of carnations with forms spread about between them and numerous little red handkerchiefs among them were greatly added to by the candles which were placed at intervals upon the board.

Charles Blow of Police Court Notoriety Gets Into Trouble at Dance—
Judge Imposes Jail Sentence.

Charles Blow, whose skill with his flute and readiness to use them on slight provocation have brought him
into the police court on several occasions, showed up there again this morning on a charge of drunkenness
to which he pleaded guilty. His gravest offense, however, was his use of insulting language to young ladies who refused to dance with him at one of the parties held in the city last evening. This was not named in the formal complaint, but Blow made no attempt to deny the accusation when interrogated directly upon the point.
He claimed that he had been working nights since dismissed from jail on January 12, and did not take any drinks until last night.

LITERARY SOCIETIES IN WEEKLY MEETINGS

Forum Elects Officers for the Rest of This Year.—Rusk Lyceum Enjoys Interesting Program.

At the regular meeting of the Forum
Literary society of the high school
last evening was held the semi-annual election of officers. When it came to picking out a few from the society
so many were eligible that a good deal of excitement was in the air while the voting was under way and the outcome of the ballot was uncertain in all cases until the votes had been counted. The officers chosen were as follows: president, Stanley Judd; vice president, Volney Hanson; secretary, Stanley Metcalf; treasurer, Fred Cummings; sergeant-at-arms, Haymond Falter; clerk, Clifford Snyder. The far ahead.

Quality in Monu- ments.

You, perhaps, don't realize that there is a vast difference in monuments, just as there is in other lines. But there is a difference and vast though it is it takes an expert to note that difference and point out the discrepancy in a poor monument. Which brings us to the point of telling you that to feel perfectly secure in the selection of your monument it is needful that you come here. It is scarcely necessary to dwell here on the quality of our monuments

CHANGES PROPOSED
FOR RACING RULES

Judges' Stand May be Divorced From Betting Ring at Congress of American Trotting Association.

(SPECIAL TO THE GAZETTE.)

Chicago, Ill., Feb. 20.—The American Trotting Association, the controlling organization of the Western turf, began its biennial congress in Chicago today with all signs pointing to a session of more than ordinary interest and importance. The association will consider and act upon a number of changes proposed by the Rules Committee, some of which are of a more or less radical character. A most radical change proposed is intended to absolutely divorce the judges' stand from the betting ring. If this rule should be adopted, it would mean that the judges would take no notice whatever of the speculation end of the meeting, and that whenever officials declared off bets they would do so on their own account and not as an enforcement of a proscribed rule in turf statutes. The rule now in force against the use of holles probably will be repealed and similar action is expected to be taken in regard to the rule forbidding drivers to carry watches in their hands while participating in a race. Still another matter of importance to be acted on is the proposition to divide money winners not according to their position in the summaries, as is the present and long-accepted custom, but after a horse has won most of the heats and the race, second, third and fourth money winners to be selected as per the total sum of their standing in the summary.

Although they did not have very large margins in any of the games at Hockett's alleys last evening the Naps were able to take three straight games from the Dodgers. Gibson, of the Naps, rolled 204 in the first game but his average was not as high as some of the others on his team. Myhr, making the average of 171 for the match. Both teams were in good form and the contest was interesting to watch throughout except for those who wanted the Dodgers to win at least one of the games. On Tuesday night Feb. 20, the Cubs and Sox will try conclusions at Hockett's and the fans are looking forward to a good match. Last night the score was as follows:

	Naps	Dodgers

NEW YORK DOG SHOW
HAS MANY ENTRIES

Over Three Thousand on Hand When Doors Opened Today.—Twenty-
One States are Represented.

(SPECIAL TO THE GAZETTE.)

New York, Feb. 20.—An entry list of nearly three thousand, three hundred was practically filled when the doors of the New Grand Central Palace were opened this morning for the thirty-sixth annual exhibition of the Westminster Kennel Club. It is the most representative entry list in the history of the organization. Twenty-one states and the Dominion of Canada are represented. New York, New Jersey, Massachusetts and Pennsylvania have the largest showing, but Kentucky, Missouri, Texas, California, Washington and other distant states are represented. The Canadians have made a particularly strong showing, as fifteen exhibitors in Ontario, Quebec and Manitoba have sent their blue-blooded canines over the border to compete with the American entries.

As usual with the bench shows held here in recent years, the collies led the list of entries, although there was a large array of French bulldogs and Boston terriers. The St. Bernard, Great Dane and Russian wolfhound classes also were heavily filled, while the small varieties, such as Griffons, Japanese spaniels, English toy spaniels, Maltese, terriers and toy black and tans, included many of the best dogs of their kind in the country. The judging of exhibits will be continued until the close of the show Friday night. Prizes worth $8,000 will be distributed among the winners.

KERCY COLLINS

TWO CUE EXPERTS.

New York City.—The recent national amateur billiard championship tournament held in the Hanover Club, Brooklyn, brought to the front two important contenders for amateur honors, in Percy Collins, the Chicago boy billiard player, and Dr. Walter Offenheimer of Philadelphia. Both played consistently and showed remarkable form.

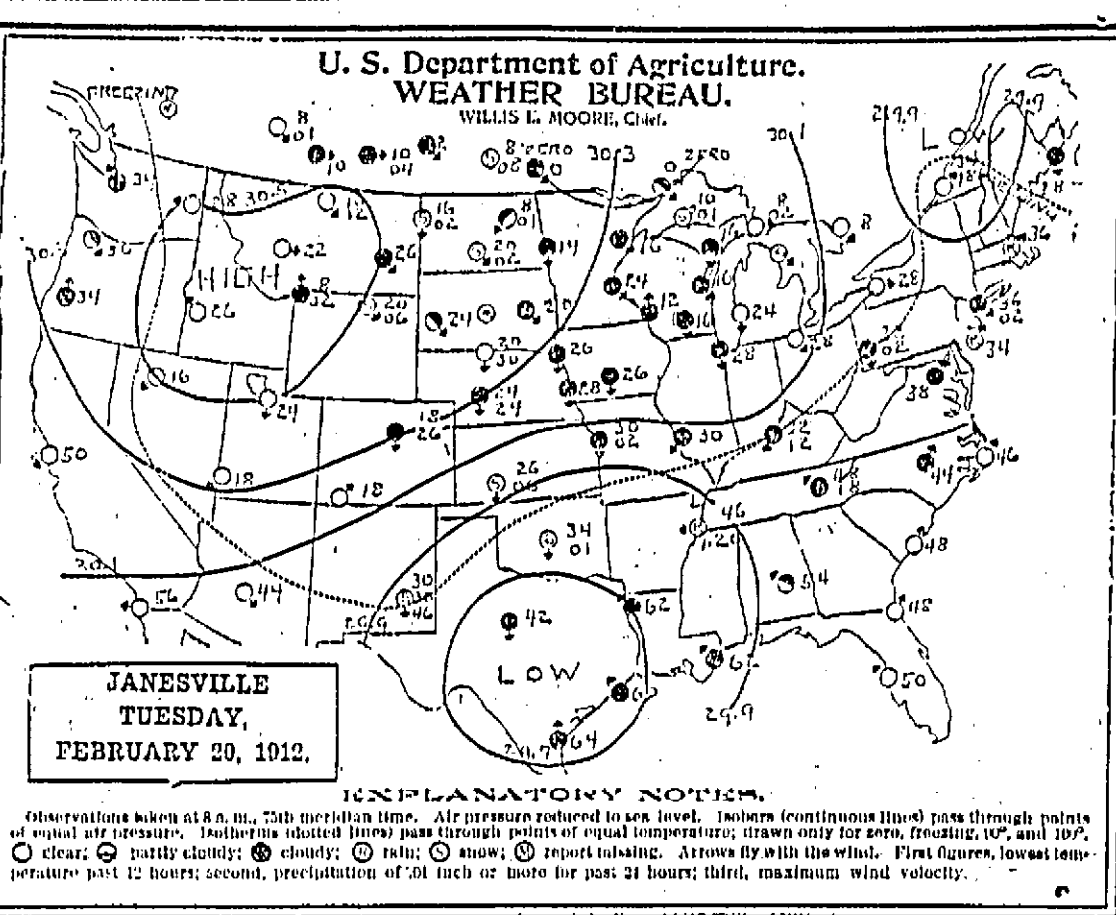

HUGO KELLY

TO CLASH AT KENOSHA FEBRUARY 21st.

Chicago, Ill.—Among the many fights to be staged the latter part of the month, the one between George "Knockout" Brown of Chicago and Hugo Kelly, is attracting considerable attention throughout the middle west.

Both men are getting down to hard training for their coming clash at Kenosha. They are doing much road work in connection with their daily boxing.

The barometric depression that was moving eastward over the lake region yesterday has now reached the St. Lawrence valley. It is attended by rain and warmer weather in New England. The depression in the Southwest has gathered over Texas, and is causing brisk winds on the coast, and precipitation in the lower Mississippi valley, and on the southern plains. A thunderstorm at Memphis was accompanied by a rainfall of 1.29 inches. An area of high atmospheric pressure occupies the entire Northwest. It is attended by colder weather, minimum of 8 degrees to 16 degrees below zero, being reported in northern Saskatchewan, and 10 degrees to 20 degrees above zero in North Dakota and northern Montana. This area of high atmospheric pressure is attended by fair weather in the Southwest, but cloudiness and light snowfalls in the Northwest.

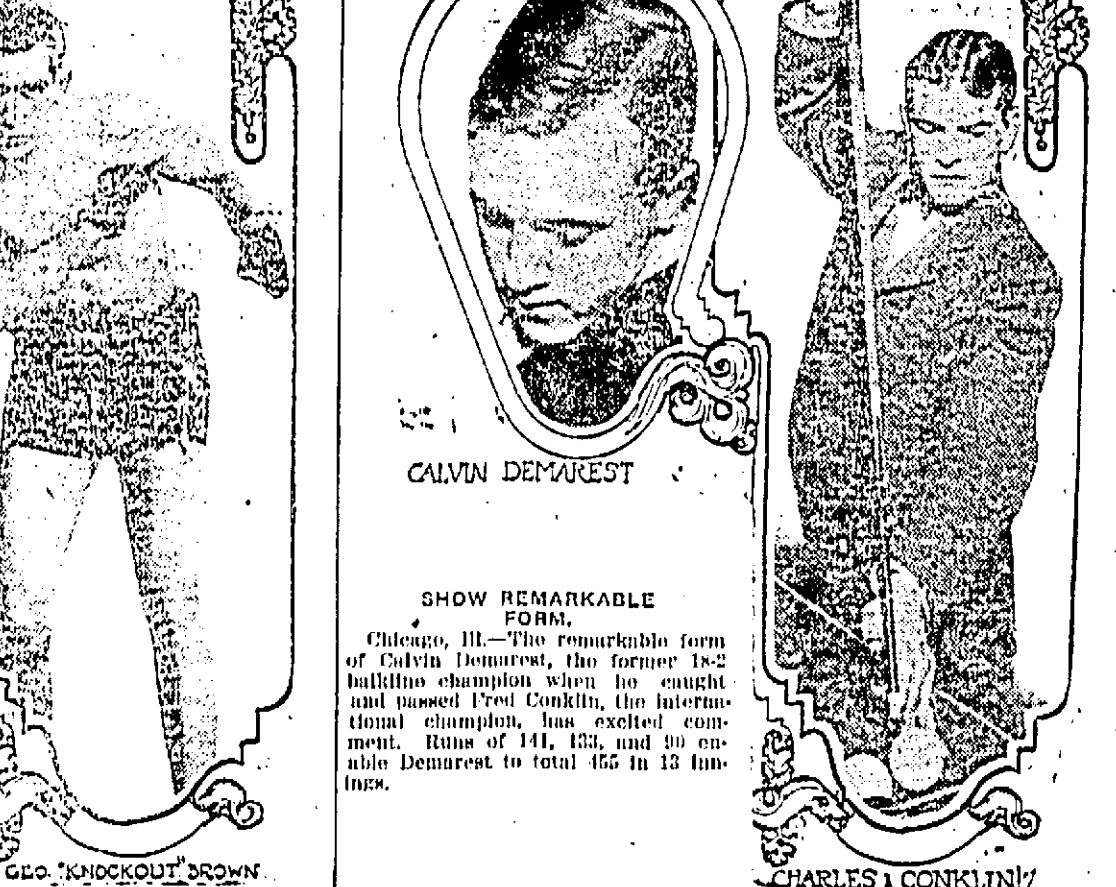

In this vicinity the weather will be fair, slightly colder tonight when the temperature may reach a minimum of 10 degrees or 15 degrees above.

Through the Swiss Mountains. At Berne, (Old Berne), among the Alps, the railroad passes the rockless mounds, from which the Swiss government procures most of the salt whose sale is a government monopoly, and often sold only by the local postmaster, who deals not only in stamps, but in salt. At this point a toothed rail is brought into play, and the gradient rapidly increases, as the cars pass through woods of walnuts and chestnuts, here an important item of the diet and income of their owners.

The Book Said So. The geography class was in session. One small pupil astonished the class by stating that in a certain section of South America there were talking monkeys. When the teacher questioned the statement the youngster opened his geography and triumphantly read: "This region is inhabited by a species of monkey; properly speaking, apes."—The Deliberator.

Of Lord Tennyson's Brother. The "high-finks of the high-noon" (to use another phrase of his) angered him, as did all persons "who go about with well-cut trousers and ill-arranged ideas."—Athenaeum.

CALVIN DEMAREST

SHOW REMARKABLE FORM.

Chicago, Ill.—The remarkable form of Calvin Demarest, the former 182 pound champion when he fought and passed Fred Conklin, the international champion, has excited comment. Runs of 141, 133, and 90 enable Demarest to total 365 in 13 minutes.

STREATOR WOMAN
PRAISES DOCTORS

MRS. C. L. COOK CURED BY UNITED DOCTORS—OTHERS
FAIL TO RELIEVE HER.

Hardly a day passes but that praise is heard of the United Doctors who have their Janesville institute in the Hayes Bldg., corner of Milwaukee and Main St.

Mrs. C. L. Cook of N. Bloomington street speaks highly of the doctors in a statement written for publication.

Mrs. Cook has been a severe sufferer from stomach and heart trouble for some time and though having treated with several other doctors says she obtained no benefit. At times her condition became so bad that she could not walk without her husband's aid and found it impossible to work. Pains in her back and great pain after eating a meal caused additional suffering.

It was in this condition that she came to the United Doctors and the below, which is part of her statement, speaks wonders for the United Doctors' treatment.

From the second week's treatment says Mrs. Cook, I began to improve and now in less than two months I feel so much better that I not only enjoy my meals but the pains in my back are gone and I have started doing my work without difficulty.

My reasons for stating this publicly is so other sufferers may know where to obtain relief.

The above statement of Mrs. Cook will be of deep interest to the sick.

The United Doctors treat among other ailments chronic diseases of the nerves, heart, kidneys, liver, bladder, including rheumatism, neuralgia, stomach, dyspepsia, constipation, indigestion, eczema, scrofula, catarrh, bloating and tape worm.

Anyone suffering from any chronic or deep seated ailment can do no better than to consult these specialists.

democrat." If that's republicanism, God save the mark, yet some people claiming to be republicans are threatened with that sort of disloyalty.

Taft will be nominated, and the old republican state of Wisconsin, just now disorganized as the result of the primary law, will honor itself by sending a solid delegation to Chicago to add in the good work. The state stands well down near the foot of the list, and Taft will be nominated before the roll call records the badger vote, but sentiment should not influence action. Wisconsin should vote solidly for Taft.

THE IDEAL CITY.

The following excerpt from an editorial in an exchange where the commission form of government exists is put just at this period in Janesville's history when we are about to select a mayor and two commissioners under the new form of government.

"Some day we will have in this city and in other cities the spirit of service, as they have it in German cities, where good men volunteer to serve the city, sometimes even in humble positions for the good of their fellow men. There they have no professional office seekers or office holders, in the American sense. No hangers on who wait around to get this or that and who make or try to make a business of politics. The best man to hold office is the man who is willing to take the service for a few years, to serve his turn and then return to his own affairs, while others, and younger and fresher men, with new ideas, come forward and take their places in the public harness.

"This sort of government, we believe, is especially possible under the commission plan. The retiring mayor of this city is a good illustration of this method. He served his time and he is now going to retire and let other men serve their day.

THE RECENT FIRE.

Before the council last evening Chief of the Fire Department Klein told the council his reasons for not having utilized the fire engine at the recent Daws and Behl fire. His statement last evening differed slightly from that given at the time of the fire to interested property-owners, but was far more logical than the statement that he had no one to run the engine as he is alleged to have stated at first. The chief also blames the citizens for the lack of water supply by stating they were running water in their homes to prevent it from freezing, thus decreasing the power of the pumping station. This may be true, but still it would appear that, if it was true, the need for the fire engine to pump water from the river at this particular fire was all the more necessary. It would not have taken any longer to haul the engine from the Court street bridge to some other danger point than it would to have gone to the engine house and taken it to the threatened district. The chief made his explanation to the council but it does not satisfy the business men who witnessed the fire and saw the whole of the downtown business district threatened, their property in danger. It may have satisfied the council, but even that is doubtful and possibly the matter has not ended here. If the fire department is crippled for lack of men let the chief say so and the city must give him more. If his hose is not strong enough to stand the strain of the pressure and do efficient work let him say so and the taxpayers will see he gets more and of better quality. An efficient fire department is a business asset to any city and can not be neglected. A careful inquiry into the department should be made and its efficiency remedied, by more men, by new equipment if necessary, and if need be by an experienced engineer to run our costly fire engine in time of such an emergency as the fire of February 12th appeared to need its service. Janesville escaped a serious conflagration due solely to the fact there was no wind to spread the flames and scatter the sparks. That and that only confined the loss to the one building.

The Wisconsin primary law is being discussed in Washington today in the question of the Stephenson investigation. The minority report is adverse to the junior Wisconsin senator although the majority members are satisfied that he was honestly elected.

Millwaukee is having a fine time with its municipal campaign this year and the antagonized fusion ticket to oppose the socialists is going to have a hard time of it before the final vote is cast.

The wisdom of cleaning the gutters during the recent cold weather has been demonstrated with the present thaw. Some property-owners might also have profited by the thaw to clean their walks.

Timelessness of Rome.

Few of us ever ask ourselves where in the eternity of Rome consists. It does not consist in a physical eternity, for Rome was not without beginning and she shall surely not be without end. It is rather a philosophical eternity. It is eternity as Kant has taught it to us, the eternity of timelessness. It is the timelessness of Rome, rather than the actual extent of time which makes the eternal, and this timelessness shows itself in nothing more clearly than in Rome's eternal youth. She who today might well be an old lady with her three thousand winters, is only the incorporation of young Italy, this modern young woman, with her head full of socialistic theories and her garments ornamented with the gridiron pattern of tramways. Jesse Benedict Carter, in the Atlantic.

Chicago is still uncertain as to just what to expect when the republican national convention gathers, but it is certain that it will mean the re-nomination of Taft.

How rats do leave a sinking ship. Pinchot is the latest one to flock to the standard of the ultra-progressives and he says he means it this time, too.

Illinois still wonders when Lorimer will cease to be a senator and they can make a new selection and start another investigation.

Heart to Heart Talks.

By EDWIN A. NYE.

MRS. FISHER, IRONMISTRESS.
Tired of reading "success stories" about men?

Well, here's one of a woman. Wu Ting Fang, the ex-Chinese minister, has called her "the most wonderful woman in America."

The woman referred to is Mrs. Clark Fisher, head of an iron works at Trenton, N. J.

From childhood Mrs. Fisher loved machinery, but it was her husband's illness and the womanly desire to help out that led her to enter the machine works, of which Mr. Fisher was the head.

"I want in as boss," she says. "But I soon learned that if I was to be respected by the employees I would have to know more than they did."

Therefore she began as a regular apprentice. She learned how to "temper steel, to chisel the face of an anvil, mold rises and make rails."

She learned the business from melting pig iron up to bidding for big contracts. And before she was through she "learned to love the work with iron and steel, the whir of the machinery and the sound of the forge."

In 1902 Mr. Fisher was killed in a railroad accident.

A few days after the funeral Mrs. Fisher went back to the iron works, donned her loose working blouse and started to straighten out a tangle of affairs that would have appalled most men.

There was a strike on. The Delaware river, overflowing its banks, had flooded the shops. The machinery was rusty, and everything was topsy turvy.

Using her woman's tact, Mrs. Fisher soon had the employees back to work and had begun to set things in order. It required more than ordinary ability to get the shops going and to provide the finances.

And now? There is no more prosperous business of its kind anywhere. Mrs. Fisher's business acumen was shown when she outbid all competitors on the contract for furnishing anvils and vices for the work on the Panama canal.

She is now rated as worth several million dollars, and—

Her successful career pretty effectively dispenses of the worsted theory concerning the mental inferiority of woman.

What do you think? A very able and talented lecturer, in the midst of a discourse last Sunday in a church, asked: "What is the most pathetic thing in domestic life?" This aroused considerable speculation on the part of at least one in the audience, who arrived at the conclusion that, so far as the most pathetic thing in domestic life is concerned, it is a close race between the following:

A pair of broken suspenders. A photograph. A gas meter that will not work. A child of an afternoon bridge flood. A lead pencil sharpened by your wife. Daughter's first music lesson.

A deserted switch hanging on a nail in the clothes press. Lawn mower returned by neighbor (if any).

STUNG. One day I met a maiden fair. With golden locks beyond compare; I wrote an ode upon her hair. Entranced quite by her tresses rare. Her guileless ways did me ensnare. I lost my heart, but didn't care. I called one fateful morning here. To see again I'd never dare. For when I met her on the stair Her charming tresses were not there; She'd left hanging on a chair. Somewhere.

Delivery Horse Runs Away: Considerable excitement was caused in the streets yesterday afternoon between four-thirty and five o'clock when a horse attached to Fredendall's delivery wagon, becoming frightened at the breaking of the harness dashed down past Milwaukee street, crossed Main street, and crashed onto the sidewalk in front of Papp's candy store. If it had not happened to strike the curb it is probable that the horse would have gone through the store window and caused serious damage. The trouble was started by the breaking of a piece of string which held the bridle up and when they dropped upon the animal's feet, it became frightened and could not be held. The young man who was driving it was not injured.

"RAPID TRANSIT" IN FUNCHAL

A SURFACE CAR

TWO OF FUNCHAL'S
FAIREST

THE CLEVELAND IN FUNCHAL HARBOR

FUNCHAL, Madeira, Oct. 29.—Five hundred Americans outward bound on a cruise around the world gave Funchal the busiest Sunday that it has had in many a day. The devout population was just finishing early mass when the gay bunting of the Hamburg-American cruising ship Cleveland came into the bay, with the sunlight gliding the tips of its stately masts. One half of the city, dressed in its best and tuckered, hastened to the pier to serve on the appointed reception committee, while the other half ran to open its business and spread out a tempting display of finery. The Americans were in a frolicsome mood, for they had been nearly eight days without a sight of land. Besides, to many this was the first time in their lives that they had seen a foreign port.

Beautiful to the eye of any traveler, Funchal has a sentimental interest in Americans because this little city of white houses, half hidden by the luxuriance of its foliage and flowers, was once the home of Columbus. On the neighboring island of Porto Santo he won the daughter of the Portuguese governor, and either here or there he is thought to have first conceived the great idea. The Funchal house in which he lived has given place to one more modern, but the site is yet to be seen. The guides, however, are not all well informed on the subject of their most celebrated townsman. One American party in Funchal several years ago was led blindly up one street and down another in a vain search for the navigator's former home. With the cheerful assistance of an idle and curious crowd the guide finally halted his party at a gateway and vanished within. After a long delay the impatient visitors saw his disconsolate face reappear. "Columbo no live here now,"

he said sadly. "He dead!" And he was much ruffled by the heartless taunt that greeted his sad disclosure. Down in the business center of this little Portuguese city is a poor excuse for a restaurant, with the one redeeming feature that the traveler may sit at a table on the narrow sidewalk and watch the sluggish stream of Funchal life flow by. (The fact that passersby must go out into the street in order to pass his table does not annoy this good natured people in the least.) Sitting here at luncheon, with a bottle of the famed Madeira wine as an antidote to the food, I saw a small wedding party come out of the cathedral across the street and drive away in exalted triumph to the young sea captain, Columbus, for they will tell you in Funchal (and it may be true) that it was in this very church that his firstborn was christened. Madeira and the Azores are our nearest neighbors eastward in the Atlantic, yet we are less acquainted with the Portuguese than with any other race in Europe. In Madeira at least, the conviction grows that the youngest of the family of republics has in it some sturdy stock, for the inhabitants of Funchal and the country folk who come with their produce are a simple, good natured, courteous people, even to tourists, who are a heavy tax upon the good nature of any land. This bulky lot that attacks its rugged head up out of the Atlantic has been tourist ridden for many years, yet even its guides make a favorable impression. They have less of that annoying persistence than those who wait at the gate of almost every port of call around the globe. The courtesy of the present born who guided about the streets of Funchal is something to be remembered. When we came to the parting

KNOXMAP SHOWING
KNOX'S TRIP

KNOX'S TRIP STIRS WORLD INTEREST.

Washington, D. C.—World-wide significance attaches to the visit soon to be made by Secretary Knox at the direction of President Taft to the countries bordering on the Caribbean Sea. Central American diplomats were unanimous in their statements tonight that the secretary's visit not only would allay internal doubt as to the attitude of the United States government toward these countries, but would ward off possible encroachments on nations in the other hemisphere.

Mr. Knox, it was announced today, will leave here tomorrow night for Palm Beach, Fla., where he will remain for a week while the cruiser

Washington is preparing to receive him. About Wednesday, Feb. 21, he plans to leave, and probably will sail direct to Colon, Panama.

After visiting the canal he will embark from the Pacific coast of Panama on the cruiser Maryland. Proceeding up the west coast of Central America because many of the capitals of those countries are more accessible from the Pacific side. Crossing Guatemala by rail, he will be met again by the cruiser Washington and will sail to Caracas, Venezuela, thence to Porto Rico, Santo Domingo, Haiti and Cuba.

ALLEGED MILLION DOLLAR GRAFT BRANDED AS FALSE

Chicago, Ill.—The alleged $1,000,000 graft in connection with the construction of the Chicago, Milwaukee & St. Paul Railway's Puget Sound Extension, is denied emphatically by President A. J. Darling of the St. Paul Railroad. For four months a rigid investigation has been under way at the instigation of the stockholders of the Chicago, Milwaukee & St. Paul into the Puget Sound Extension. It is alleged by the unnamed stockholders that the extension will be filed shortly, both here and in Seattle, the Western terminal, seeking to bring to light in the courts facts regarding these same rumors. William Rockefeller is a leading power and has also denied the allegations.

Always Worth Waiting For.

If success seems abominably slow in being attained, it is worth while remembering that the quickest and surest way to render it absolutely impossible to give up, trying for it, or to try for it like some people wait when they find themselves in deep water—throw their arms and feet all about in desperation.

Important Thing to Know.

It is easy to understand why the nation is willing that millions be spent on a weather bureau. If we can only forecast through weather experts, goose bone prophets, corn husk prognosticators or in any other way just what the weather will be from day to day, living will be made a great deal easier for us all. We can get the day in out of that thunderstorm or hold up that shipment of perishable stuff that a solid freeze and zero weather will utterly ruin.

Want It All for Themselves.

There are men who love liberty so much that they not only grow selfish but actually do get excited when some one else dares to suggest that others should be allowed the right to enjoy the use of some of it.

AMERICAN FENCE

Made of Hard, Stiff Wire, of Highest Quality

A Heavy American Fence Costs You No More Per Rod Than Lighter Fences of Other Makes

A roll of heavy fence means big wire. Big wire means more strength and longer life. Insist upon the dealer weighing the roll of fence he sells you. This will tell the story quicker than any other way, for you cannot always tell the size of wire by eye. American Fence will stand this test against any fence made, and will prove its greater weight. Why, then, pay the same money for a lighter fence?

American Fence is made of hard, stiff steel. It is made of a quality of wire drawn expressly for woven-wire-fence purposes by the largest manufacturers of wire in the world. Galvanized by latest improved processes, the best that the skill and experience of years has taught. Built on the same elastic, hinged-joint (patented) principle, which effectually protects the stay or upright wires from breaking under hard usage.

Test, judge and compare American Fence under any and all conditions and you will find that the steel, the structure and the galvanizing are equal in durability, strength and efficiency to the hardest used.

Organ Many Centuries Old.

What is believed to be the oldest organ in existence has been discovered by a German musical director, who visited 59 churches in Gothland, and in a village called Sundne came upon the remnant of the quaint old instrument. The case alone has survived the frost of seven centuries, and its exterior is adorned with paintings from about the year 1210.

Chance for an Investigator.

Wasn't it J. J. Gould who laid the foundation of a great fortune by the sale of rat traps? If so, and you have ever tried to set one of these five or ten cent affairs they sell in the department stores, you may well wonder why some one does not follow his example with a mouse trap that can be set without losing all one's religion. —Scientific American.

Criticism of Absent Cowardly.

Don't criticize the absent. Make it a point when any man is under discussion to say something nice about him or to keep still. There's always something mean and cowardly in a criticism made upon an absent person. You fall at once in the estimation of right-minded people who hear you. They may think you small, and possibly may set you down as a cad.

The transformation of the usual annual deficit in the postal department to a surplus.

The conscientious efforts to uphold, strengthen and elevate the federal judiciary and to simplify and improve methods of judicial procedure.

The redemption of the party pledge, in regard to postal savings banks.

The interest in the cause of labor as shown in the laws which he has recommended and signed and in his recent demand for a commission on industrial relations.

The determined purpose to remove the tariff from the field of partisan and selfish politics and to give the subject scientific and economic consideration.

The universal services in behalf of world-wide arbitration and universal peace.

The fine courtesy, and the serene dignity which characterize every public performance of President Taft.

The challenge our admiration and entitle him to our profound respect and a continuation of our confidence.

Therefore, as Wisconsin Republicans, we pledge him our earnest and enthusiastic support in the approaching campaign.

Attorney General Wickersham, in an address here last night, declared that the chief aim of the enforcement of the Sherman anti-trust law had been raised by those interested in unfair business methods and "who have read in the active, vigilant prosecution of that law under President Taft, the freedom to their practices, and, who, threatened with the loss of their gains, seek to destroy both the law that commands them and the executive that brings them to execution."

In following in detail "the administration's anti-trust record," the Attorney General rose to this climax in tribute to President Taft, for his course in enforcing the law.

"Under the wise, patriotic and efficient administration of William Howard Taft, this vigilant and persistent exertion of the executive department in the enforcement of this law has never slackened nor failed. If the people understand and approve, as they will and must, with what splendid courage and single-mindedness that great patriot has directed the impartial enforcement of this law, they will continue him in his high office to so far work out the problem of equal business practice with the law of the land as to make impossible for the future the recurrence of those abuses which in the past have threatened the stability of our institutions through the unchecked power of ruthless wealth."

"The Attorney General gave a historical sketch of the suits and prosecutions which have been brought under the Sherman law since its enactment. The republican platform of 1908, he added had referred to the prosecution of illegal trusts and monopolies as among the great accomplishments of the Roosevelt administration and declared that the Sherman law had been a wholesome instrument for good in the hands of a wise and fearless administration. Mr. Taft in his speech of acceptance of the presidential nomination, he continued, had pledged himself to the enforcement of that law.

In discussing the question involved in the civil and criminal suits begun under President Taft, Mr. Wickersham declared that "there all involve some variety of the same offense, namely: the effort to secure and retain control over business by methods which are always unfair—sometimes unfair to each other, always unfair to outsiders and always unfair to the public in general. One and all of them involve the effort, more or less subtle, more or less brutal, on the part of a limited number of men to control as nearly as may be an entire industry or the entire business in a particular part of the country for their own benefit, and to destroy that equality of opportunity in others which is the hallmark of every American. Those were the evils to meet which the Sherman law was enacted, and the enforcement of that law by the present administration has been directed particularly against that sort of unfair dealing which, when known and understood, is condemned by all right-minded men, but which, working in darkness, cloaked under forms of law and surrounded with the mantle of respectability, is not so readily understood."

The Attorney General made an argument for a restoration of the American merchant marine in his reference to the anti-trust suit which has been brought against the Hamburg-American steamship company and others in New York, involving the question whether the United States is powerless in the face of a combination of virtually all the trans-Atlantic steamship lines authorized by the law of the European countries where most of them are domiciled."

He said: "Perhaps no more useful office could be performed by the Department of Justice than to focus the attention of the people upon the lamentable absence of an American merchant marine, through the enforcement of a decree in this case.

"If foreign steamship lines using our ports can defy the laws we have made to protect our people against unfair restraint of trade because we must use their ships or cease exporting our products it is high time our congress should take the enactment of legislation to make possible the reestablishment of our merchant marine, and that American shipping once more take its place in the front rank of the world's commerce."

The representatives of some of the foreign lines, Mr. Wickersham declared, "have somewhat cynically expressed their belief that our government is powerless in the face of this combination. One of the most valuable contributions by the Supreme Court to the enforcement of this law was the adjudication in the tobacco case that, if necessary, unusual remedies be invoked to carry out its provisions; and I have no doubt that if the government shall establish on the trial of this case on its merits the fact that in the nation, some facts never to be found to enforce the law will be found to enforce the law of the owners of foreign steamship companies who use its ports."

Discussing the application of the Sherman statute the Attorney General pointed out that four civil suits and three criminal prosecutions had been brought during the three years remaining of President Harrison's administration after the passage of the act; five civil suits and two criminal prosecutions were brought during Cleveland's administration; eighteen civil suits, twenty-five criminal indictments and one proceeding by seizure of property were brought under Roosevelt's administration; and thirty-seven civil suits and thirty-seven indictments under Taft.

ELECTRIC INSOLE IN SHOE

Portable Battery Carried in Pocket Connects With Conducting Material—Continuous Treatment.

A Colorado man recently asked himself: "If electricity is good for rheumatism and other ailments in spasmodic treatments, why wouldn't it be better if the treatment could be taken for hours at a time and without any inconvenience to the subject?" He decided that it would, and forthwith designed what is known as the "electric insole." This device consists of a pair of insoles of conducting material connected by wires with a portable battery, which is carried in the trousers pocket or suspended inside the trousers by a belt that catches the belt. The wires run down the inside of the trousers legs and connect with the metal members of the insoles. The current, of course, can be switched on or off at will and the treatment can be taken as the subject is walking about the street or attending to his business. As it is spread over a much longer time and has more opportunity to work, it should be more effective.

FROM CANNIBAL TO COOK.

New York City.—A year or so ago the crew of Portuguese Cruiser had a skirmish with the cannibals in Uganda, Africa, and captured their chief. He was pressed into active service and is now chief cook of the "Republic," Iwama Tumbo and his African helpers are now enjoying the high life of New York.

ALBANY

Albany, Feb. 20.—Mrs. Edwin Portford left Monday for her future home in Indiana where her husband is telegraph operator. Her mother, Mrs. Geo. Atherton, accompanied her as far as Janesville, returning at noon.

The Albany Hardware Specialty Manufacturing company are hurrying forward a shipment of five of their drill presses. Of these one goes to Japan, one to England, the others to various parts of the United States.

A surprise was given Mrs. John Atherton yesterday by the Atherton family at her home here, it being her birthday.

HEART AND HOME TALKS

BY BARBARA BOYD

Giving Washington a Character.

OFFHAND, just what would you say was the character of Washington? asked a woman of a little group of friends.

"I've heard he had a bad temper," said one.

"And was dreadfully," said another.

"And privately," admitted a third, "though I wouldn't proclaim it from a Fourth of July platform, I don't believe his wings had sprouted or that a halo always encircled his noble brow. Understand, I am very fond of the Father of His Country, and if he hadn't fathered it, I guess we wouldn't have had any country. But I am ready to wager my spring hat that he was just as pernickety about what he ate as other men, that probably he told Martha her pie weren't one, two, three with his mother's, and that if his socks weren't darned, he said reproachfully, 'If you didn't play bridge so much, you might find time to do a little darning.' When it came to government, he was there with the goods, but I don't believe he sat around at home like a saint on his porch."

"His pictures, though, do have a kind of statue-in-a-niche air," joined in one.

"Yes, and that noble, high-brow expression of his is what gives the impression that he is far removed from other men. But I don't believe that in ordinary matters he was. But when he was right up against a big proposition, then he had the stuff in him to handle it. You're a school-teacher," went on the speaker, turning to a little woman who had sat quiet.

"I'll say something about Washington that isn't cherry-colored," The little school-teacher smiled. "He could swear," she said. "Some one who heard him swear at Charlie Lee at Monmouth said his profanity was like the cursing of an angel out of heaven at human baseness and cowardice."

"I should like to have heard it," interrupted one of the women. "I guess that's what you call righteous indignation."

"And as for his temper," went on the school-teacher, "when he was a child, he whipped a colt until it died. But his grief was almost as great as his anger. I think that incident taught him a lot. But what I like about him is that although he had the temper and strong will, he held them both, as a rule, with a tight rein. Other men let their tempers fly. He didn't. But the force and power that temper signified were there, and helped to accomplish other things."

"There were neither Sunday Schools nor dime novels where he lived when he was a boy," went on the school-teacher, with a twinkle in her eye. "Draw your own conclusions. But one thing that I think means a lot was the fact that his father died when he was quite young, and his mother had sole charge of his bringing up. I don't mean to reflect on his father. But I think he must have had a fine mother. And though she had no idea of the tremendous importance of what she was doing, when she instilled into his mind those fine principles that in later life stood all tests, she was really helping to build this country of ours for us. He thought a great deal of his mother. When he was fourteen he had a chance to go as a midshipman in the English Navy, and you can imagine what such an adventure would mean to a boy. But his mother didn't want him to go, and he didn't. If he had gone the whole complexion of our history might have been changed. Seems to me, we owe George Washington's mother a lot just for bringing up her boy to be a good man."

"The little group was silent a few moments. 'A mother never knows, does she,' said one. 'Just what seed she is sowing.'"

"He was always falling in love when he was young, and he even wrote poetry," went on the school-teacher. "Imagine the immortal George writing poetry! When I look at those solemn pictures of his I like to think that he was a man just like other men, that he could make caustic remarks if buttons were off, and now and then use the same sort of language that our own men folks do; but that when the test came, he could stand and pray at Valley Forge, he could keep quiet under all sorts of reviling and unjust accusations, that he could steadily and courageously go ahead on what he knew was the right course, though everything looked dark, and when most men would have become weak-kneed and given up."

"He certainly measured up to the job," said one of the women.

"He certainly did. And he was rich and had a nice home and could have lived in comfort all those years that he was fighting and starving and being called names. I wonder why it is that when we get a genuinely good man in office we revile and criticize and lie about him, until I should think he would throw up the work in disgust as a thankless task."

"And I wonder why we don't have some Washingtons today?" inquired one of the women.

"The politicians wouldn't let them get an office," replied another.

"If the people could find a Washington there would be a landslide for him," said the school-teacher. "The Washington kind of man is the kind."

HOUSEHOLD HINTS.

Desiccated coconut can be made at home with a little work, but costing much less than the proprietary article. Break the shell and carefully remove all of the brown coat and run the white meat through a meat chopper, using a coarse cutter at first, then a finer one. This will not take as much time as trying to cut it fine at first. To every quart of the ground meat add a cupful of sugar, stir well and stand in the oven or warming oven until thoroughly dry, stirring occasionally. It will take two days to dry, but the result will be very satisfactory.

Coconut Cookies.—Cream one and a half cups of sugar with a cup of warmed butter. Add three well beaten eggs and three tablespoons of milk, a cupful of desiccated coconut and three cups of flour, sifted, with four teaspoons of baking powder. Flavor and bake.

Roast Beef Sandwiches.—These are very nice for a hot supper or luncheon dish. Place rounds or slices of buttered bread covered with slices of cold roast beef, season and pour hot gravy over the sandwich and serve hot.

Pear Dessert.—Take the juice of canned pears, add a little mace to it and boil to extract the flavor. Pour over the pears and serve with whipped cream for dessert.

Uncooked Mince-meat.—Two cups of chopped meat to five cups of chopped apple, three cups of raisins, one cup of vinegar, a cup of cider, a tablespoonful of cinnamon, a cup of molasses and a cup of suet. This will keep a long time if very cold or may be cooked, and will keep indefinitely.

Potato Puffs.—To each cupful of mashed potato take one egg, one tablespoonful of milk, two tablespoonfuls of flour, one-fourth of a teaspoon of baking powder and salt to season. Mix well and roll into finger rolls, fry in deep fat as doughnuts. Serve hot.

UP-TO-DATE HOUSEKEEPING.

Does Filling, Frosting or Batter Name The Chocolate Cake.

By Alice E. Whitaker.

At county or grange fairs there are generally exhibitions of cooking which usually include cake. The premium lists announce prizes for different kinds and among them is the chocolate cake. Those who judge the merits of this sort of cake are puzzled over the definition of a chocolate cake. Some of the contributors believe it to be a cake with chocolate filling or frosting while others think that there must be chocolate in the cake portion and some hard feeling generally ensues over the interpretation by the judges.

Let us answer to a request for a chocolate cake recipe by a unsatisfactory several are given so that a possible difference of opinion will be met. The following chocolate cream cake takes its name from the filling alone. Cream one-half cup of butter, add one cup of sugar and beat smooth, add one-half cup of cornstarch dissolved in a scant one-half cup of milk and beat well. Add the whites of three eggs beaten stiff and dry, one-half teaspoon of vanilla and one and one-quarter cups sifted with four level teaspoons of baking powder. Bake in two round tins not over two inches deep.

For the filling beat the whites of two eggs, add two tablespoons of water and enough confectioners' sugar to make an icing that will spread but not run. Do not substitute powdered sugar for the kind directed.

When this icing is dry and firm melt two squares of chocolate over hot water, add two tablespoons of milk and one of water. Heat and add one cup of sugar; cook five minutes slowly over hot water when it should be ready to spread well. Pour over the white icing.

Next is a cake with chocolate filling and made from a very old recipe. Cream one-half cup of butter, add one and one-half cups of sugar and beat again. Add one-half cup of milk, two and one-half cups of flour sifted with a rounding teaspoon of cream of tartar and one-half level teaspoon of soda. Or use two and one-half cups of baking powder. Stir in last three well beaten eggs and bake in three round layer cake pans.

The filling calls for two-thirds cup of grated chocolate, one-half cup of sugar and two-thirds cup of milk simmered together five minutes. Add one-half teaspoon of vanilla flavoring and use while warm as a filling for the cakes that have been cooled.

A chocolate layer cake is the ideal of some cooks. To make a large one beat the yolk of one egg, add one-half cup of milk and one-half cup of sugar then two squares of chocolate grated. Cook until it thickens and set aside to cool.

Beat the yolk of two eggs, add to one-half cup of butter and one and one-half cups of sugar creamed together. Add one teaspoon of vanilla and the chocolate mixture. When well mixed add alternately one-half cup of milk and one level teaspoon of

The Evening Chit-Chat

BY RUTH CAMERON

MY SON, if you would be wise, open first your eyes, next your ears, and last of all your mouth, that your words may be words of wisdom and give no advantage to your adversary."—Old Indian Proverb.

The value of knowing when to keep one's mouth closed is a very old story, but a better friend has presented it to me in a new aspect, which is more than worth passing on.

It seems that the above Indian proverb was brought into English three quarters of a century ago by a man named George Catlin. This man, being on the verge of consumption, went and lived outdoors among the Indians. From this wild life, he brought back his health and this interesting observation—that the Indians make a very special point always to keep their mouths shut, except when eating or speaking. And as anyone who knows anything about Indians will testify, that latter process wouldn't keep their mouths open very long.

Not only did he notice that the adult Indians observe this rule, but also that all the squaws were most careful to see that their babies' mouths were closed when they were sleeping. He found that the Indians were almost entirely immune from decayed teeth—think of it, with no dentists, nor tooth brushes, nor dental floss, nor tooth powder, to save them—and from throat troubles, and he was so much impressed that he adopted the practice of keeping his mouth closed as much as possible. To that and to the fresh air, he ascribed his recovery.

Mr. Catlin must have been the original grandfather of health faddists for he was so thoroughly converted, that he wrote a pamphlet to show that all human life could be avoided if one would always breathe through the nostrils. This pamphlet was entitled "Shut Your Mouth," and closed thus, "If I were to endeavor to bequeath to posterity, the most important motto which human language can convey, it should be in three words, 'Shut your mouth.'"

It is interesting to observe how closely the old Indian wisdom tallies with modern medical teachings. Just the other day, in a progressive dental magazine, I read a long article, telling how many of the defective and delinquent children were found to be mouth breathers, and how much improvement in them had been made by continual mouth breathing. And to think that the Indians knew all this a century ago.

The letter-friend who sends me all this information, says that he has not only formed the habit of keeping his mouth carefully closed in the daytime, but sleeps with a band tied under his chin and over his head, to make sure that his mouth shall not drop open when he is asleep.

We all know that mouth breathing is harmful, but I think it will not hurt any of us to be reminded anew of the many advantages of keeping our mouths shut. And I especially recommend to mothers the wisdom of the Indian women who, a century before the day of health fads, were forming this health habit for their little papooses.

Last comes a cake with chocolate in the batter. Cream one-half cup of butter, add one cup of sugar, one-half cup of milk, one and two-thirds cups of flour sifted with three level teaspoons of baking powder, the yolks of three eggs and beat well.

Have one and one-half squares of chocolate melted with three level tablespoons of sugar and two tablespoons of water. When smooth and glossy add to the first mixture and a scant teaspoon of vanilla. Bake slowly and cover with a white icing.

Small coron cakes are another variation. Cream one-half cup of butter with one-third cup of sugar, add the beaten yolks of three eggs and beat. Add one cup of sugar mixed with a level teaspoon of cinnamon and beat

It requires mind to accomplish great wealth and distribute it wisely, not physique. It requires mind to write such poetry, history, music and tragedy that it shall live in the hearts of men. Here physical bulk in the presence of mind dwindles to insignificance.

BEEF NOT AN ECONOMICAL SOURCE OF PROTEIN.

The government chart on the food value of the edible portion of beef steak gives the protein content as 18.6, fat 18.5, water 61.9 and ash 1.0. Fuel value, 1,130 calories per pound. As the value of beef depends chiefly upon its protein content it is evident that it is a much more expensive source of this element than other protein foods. Peanuts contain about 28 per cent. of protein, about 65 per cent. of heat and energy material, beans and peas about the same, cheese about 30 per cent. of protein, oats, 16 per cent., cream cheese 25 per cent., smoked herring 36 per cent. While the total fuel value of beefsteak is 1,130 calories, that of peanut is about 2,500, olive oil 4,080, corn 1,800. As previously explained, food value is not to be determined entirely by chemical analysis. Many competent authorities now hold that flesh meat in any form is injurious. However this may be, it is clear that whether the poor man buys beef for the protein or for the supply of muscular energy and heat, he pays much more than for the same in cereals, beans, or nuts, without considering waste.

Home Method of Removing Wrinkles and Double Chin

(Saturday Evening Herald)

"We women know how important double chins, wrinkles and enlarged pores and blackheads are to us. Why, they are almost a matter of life and death to us, sometimes. Anyway, we are glad to find out that common thermostated jelly will quickly and permanently remove them. Just get a small tin box of it from your druggist and rub it in freely into your face every day. It penetrates through the outer skin and reaches the fibrous tissue beneath, needing heat-energy and nourishment. Pure thermostated jelly will very quickly bring about really wonderful results. With wrinkles gone, the next thing is to renew the complexion, and the best way to do this is to remove the old one. This is being done at home right along by using pure colodion balsam on the face and gradually removing the old particles of dead matter which cover up the natural beauty of the skin. This is the real secret of many of the soft and radiant complexions that excite the envy of women and admiration of men as they pass by."

It Wasn't.

The telephone call of a suite of apartments in a ladies' boarding house in 190. One young lady, a recent comer, answered the call and was astonished to hear a man's voice inquire hurriedly, "Is this one nine?" When she could catch her breath, the lady who was a very proper young lady indeed, replied, "I think not. Were we ever introduced?"

Thought for Today

By ROBERT M. LAPOLETTE.

THE TRAP THEORY.

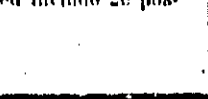

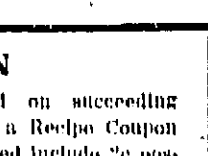

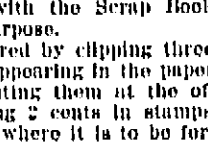

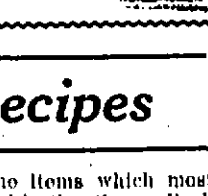

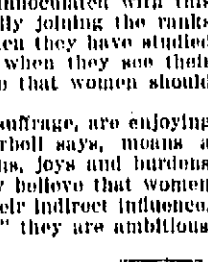

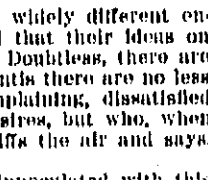

MAN and marriage are a trap—that is the essence the young woman draws from the campaign of woman's rights," said Ida Tarbell.

In each generation and in every phase of society you will hear the Katharine and the Benedictine railing against marriage. Such characteristic adolescent foolishness has no more relation to suffrage today than it did when Shakespeare wrote "Taming of the Shrew," and "As You Like It."

In my intimate acquaintance with many women of widely different environment and divergent view, I have never observed that their ideas on suffrage affected their views as to men and marriage. Doubtless, there are embittered women working for suffrage, but among the ants there are no less conspicuous examples of uneasiness—that narrow, complaining, dissatisfied woman, who personally appears to have nothing she desires, but who, when women's participation in public affairs is suggested, sniffs the air and says, "I have all the rights I want."

Not one of the young women I know has been inoculated with this "woman-ness" virus. The college girls, who are rapidly joining the ranks for suffrage, are just wholesome young women, who, when they have studied economic questions like the tariff and the trusts, and when they see their effect on labor conditions and the cost of living, realize that women should share the responsibility of legislation.

The great majority of my acquaintances who favor suffrage, are enjoying the normal fulfillment of life—a home, which Miss Tarbell says, means a mate, children, friends, with all the radiating obligations, joys and burdens those relations imply. They favor suffrage because they believe that women can be of greater service with the direct vote than by their indirect influence. Instead of being in revolt against being "tied to a man," they are ambitious to be truly mates—to share their half of the load.

HOW WEAK WOMEN

May Be Made Strong at Small
Expense and No Risk

There are hundreds of women in this vicinity, weak, thin, run-down,
tired out and nervous. Such women need Vinol just as much as did Mrs.
Jane Pepper, of 2307 Howard street,
San Francisco, Cal., who says:

"I have used Vinol for some time with particularly gratifying results. I was run down, weak and debilitated,
and my appetite was gone. After taking several bottles of Vinol I found my condition greatly improved, and do not hesitate to recommend Vinol
to anyone similarly affected."

Vinol is not a secret nostrum, but
a delicious cod liver and iron tonic
without oil, which will create an appetite, tone up the digestive organs,
make pure blood and create strength.
Try a bottle of Vinol with the understanding that your money will be returned if it does not help you.

"Why, the counterbalance that lifts
the whole of this wall on to its pivot.
You surely don't expect it to move
of itself, by enchantment! If you watch, you will see the mirror first rise an inch or two and then shift an inch or two from left to right. It will then be on a pivot and will swing
round."

"It's not turning!" said Raoul impatiently.

"Oh, wait! You have time enough to be impatient, sir! The mechanism has obviously become rusty, or else
the spring isn't working. . . . Unless it is something else," added the Persian anxiously.

"What?"

"He may simply have cut the cord
of the counterbalance and blocked
the whole apparatus."

"Why should he? He does not know that we are coming this way!"

"I dare say he suspects it, for he knows that I understand the system."

"It's not turning! . . . And Christine, sir, Christine!"

The Persian said coldly:

"We shall do all that it is humanly possible to do. . . . But he may stop us at the first step! . . . He commands the walls, the doors and the trap-doors. In my country, he was known by a name which means the
'trap-door lover'."

"But why do these walls obey him alone? He did not build them!"

"Yes, sir, that is just what he did!"

Raoul looked at him in amazement;
but the Persian made a sign to him to be silent and pointed to the glass.

"There was a sort of shivering reflection. Their image was troubled as in a rippling sheet of water and then all became stationary again."

"You see, sir, that it is not turning! Let us take another road!"

"Tonight, there is no other!" declared the Persian, in a singularly mournful voice. "And now, look out!
And be ready to fire."

He himself raised his pistol opposite the glass. Raoul imitated his movement. With his free arm, the Persian drew the young man to his chest and, suddenly, the mirror
turned, in a blinding blaze of revolver lights; it turned like one of those revolving doors which have lately been fixed to the entrances of most restaurants, it turned, carrying Raoul
and the Persian with it and suddenly hurling them from the full light into the deepest darkness.

CHAPTER XX.

In the Collars of the Opera.

"Your hand high, ready to fire!"
repeated Raoul's companion quickly.
The wall, behind them, having completed the circle which it described upon itself, closed again; and the two men stood motionless for a moment, holding their breath.

At last, the Persian decided to make a movement; and Raoul heard him slip on his knees and feel for something in the dark with his groping hands. Suddenly, the darkness was made visible by a small dark
lantern and Raoul instinctively stopped backward as though to escape the scrutiny of a secret enemy. But he soon perceived that the light belonged to the Persian, whose movements he was closely observing. The little red disk was turned in every direction
and Raoul saw that the floor, the walls and the ceiling were all formed of planking. It must have been the ordinary road taken by Erik
to reach Christine's dressing-room
and impose upon her innocence.

And Raoul, remembering the Per-sian's remark, thought that it had been mysteriously constructed by the ghost himself. Later, he learned that Erik had found, all prepared for him,
a secret passage, long known to him.

during all the performances.
But now Maclair was not in his box and his assistants not in their places.

"Maclair! Maclair!"
The stage-manager's voice echoed through the collars. But Maclair
did not reply.

I have said that a door opened on a little staircase that led to the second cellar. The commissary pushed it, but it resisted.

"I say," he said to the stage-manager, "I can't open this door; is it always so difficult?"

The stage-manager forced it open with his shoulder. He saw that, at the same time, he was pushing a human body and he could not keep back
an exclamation, for he recognized
the body at once.

"Maclair! Poor devil! He is dead!"

But Mr. Commissary Mitford, whom nothing surprised, was stooping over that big body.

"No," he said, "he is dead-drunk,
which is not quite the same thing."

"It's the first time, if so," said the stage-manager.

"Then some one has given him a narcotic. That is quite possible."

Mitford went down a few steps and said:

"Look!"

By the light of a little red lantern,
at the foot of the stairs, they saw two other bodies. The stage-manager recognized Maclair's assistant.

Mitford went down and listened to their breathing.

"They are sound asleep," he said.
"Very curious business! Some person unknown must have interfered
with the gas-man and his staff. . . .
and that person unknown was obviously working on behalf of the kidnapper. . . . But what a funny idea to kidnap a performer on the stage! . . . Hm! For the doctor of the theater, please!" And Mitford repeated, "Curious, decidedly curious business!"

Then he turned to the little room,
addressing the people whom Raoul
and the Persian were unable to see from where they lay.

"What do you say to all this, gentlemen? You are the only ones who have not given your views. And yet you must have an opinion of some sort."

Thereupon, Raoul and the Persian saw the startled faces of the joint managers appear above the landing;
and they heard Monchamrin's excited voice:

"There are things happening here."

"Curious, Decidedly Curious Business!"

Mr. Commissary, which two are unable to explain.

And the two faces disappeared.

"Thank you for the information,"
gentleman," said Mitford, with a jeer.

But the stage-manager, holding his chin in the hollow of his right hand,
which is the attitude of profound
thought, said:

"It is not the first time that Ma-
clair has fallen asleep in the theater.
I remember finding him, one evening,
snoring in his little recess, with his snuff-box beside him."

The Philosopher of Folly.

"There are two ways," said the phiosopher of folly, "to make a little money go a long way. One is to save it, and the other is to spend it."

Steps were heard and shadows glided through the darkness. The Persian drew Raoul behind a set piece.
They saw passing before and above them old men bent by age and the past burden of open-society. Some could hardly drag themselves along;
others, from habit, with stooping
bodies and outstretched hands, looked for doors to shut.

They were the door-shutters, the old, worn-out scene-shifters, on whom
a charitable management had taken pity, giving them the job of shutting doors above and below the stage.

They went about incessantly, from top to bottom of the building, shutting the doors; and they were also called "The draft-exploders." It was at that time, for I have little doubt that by now they are all dead. Drafts are very bad for the voice, wherever they may come from.

(To Be Continued)

Dr. Evans, Ex-Commissioner of Health, says: "There is almost no relation between skin diseases and the blood." The skin must be cured through the skin.
The germs must be washed out, and so
salves have long been found worthless. The most advanced physicians of this country are now agreed on this, and
are prescribing a wash of white-gum,
thymol and other ingredients for eczema
and all other skin diseases. This compound is known as D.D.D. Prescription for Eczema.

Dr. Holmes, the well known skin specialist writes: "I am convinced that the D.D.D. Prescription is as much a specific for eczema as quinine for malaria. I have been prescribing the D.D.D. remedy for years." It will take away the itch
the instant you apply it.

In fact, we are so sure of what D.D.D.
will do for you that we will be glad to let you have a $1 bottle on our guarantee that it will cost you nothing unless you find that it does the work.

RELATION OF DIET TO CAN- CER.

Dr. Haig, of England, well known as the foremost authority on uric acid, who cured
himself of rheumatism by diet
after he had failed by the use of drugs, announces that he is about to begin a course of experiments to determine the relation of diet to the causation and cure of cancer. Referring to this, Dr. Lee, of New York, formerly chairman of the department of dietetics of the American Medical association, says
that he has decided to undertake a similar course of scientific experiments. Nearly a year ago
it was announced that Prof.
Ehrlich had made a series of experiments on mice to determine the influence of diet in cancer. His results confirmed,
as far as he went, those obtained by the writer and given
in these hints before Ehrlich's were announced. Nearly ten years ago the writer began a course of investigation to determine the influence of diet in cancer and three years ago it was announced that the chief physical cause of cancer is in wrong diet. This has been fully confirmed and will finally be generally admitted by physicians and a system of treatment, adopted on a nutritional basis like that now followed in the treatment of tuberculosis.

"I was afflicted

and biliousness for years, and at times became so bad I would become unconscious. I have been found in that condition many times.
Physicians did not seem to be able to do me any good. I would become weak and for days at a time could do no work. Not long ago I got a box of Dr. Miles' Laxative Tablets, and after using them found I had never tried anything that acted in such a mild and effective manner. I believe I have at last found the remedy that suits my case."

Thousands of people are sufferers
from habitual constipation and of the danger of this condition, yet

neglect too long to employ proper curative measures until serious ill-

horses are as numerous as they were several years ago, and are bringing just as good prices.

The horse market in Janesville is active, there is a steady de-

good light harness horses are bringing top prices.

The best directory of horse buyers and sellers is found in the Ga-
